THE DEAD RULER.

All Europe Mourns the Loss of the Russian Monarch.

PASSED AWAY PEACEFULLY

Peasants to Mourn with a Deep and Abiding Sorrow.

THE EMPEROR'S DOMESTIC PURITY.

Though Stern and Unrelenting in His Treatment of Political Prisoners He Was Most Gentle and Lovable In His Family Relations, and Was an Especial Favorite with the Children—A Giant in Stature and Strength and Always a Hard Worker—Great Indignation Against Dr. Zacharin.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 2.—The angel of death, in the shadow of whose pinions the autocrat of all the Russians has been lying for many days, yesterday beckoned, and the soul of the man who had had in his hands the lives and, destinies of millions upon millions of men, was borne away. Calmly and peacefully as a sleeping babe, he who by his slightest word could have plunged Europe into a war, the horrors of which would defy description, fell into the dreamless sleep which he feared not. He, the head of a church whose members number over 70,000,000 persons, took its last rites a few hours before death claimed him from all his greatness.

At 2:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon the summons came, and a few hours later the thunderous booming of cannon at Livadia and St. Petersburg announced that the czar was dead, and that he who had been the Grand Duke Nicholas reigned in his stead. On lightning wings the news of Russia's loss spread throughout the world, and it is safe to say that everywhere the intelligence created sympathy for the family of him who by his policy had maintained the peace of Europe.

From America came words of sympathy, for the dead ruler had always been a friend of the great republic of the west, and Americans have not forgotten how well the czar's friendship sustained the north in the war of the rebellion.

Among the peasants of Russia he will be mourned with a deep and abiding sorrow, for was he not the "peasant czar." None of the grandiloquent titles borne by him was thought as much of as the one bestowed upon him by his lowly subjects, whose virtues were magnified in him, and whose vices in him were entirely lacking. He who denies the popularity of the czar among the lowly classes of Russia is blinded by prejudice. His kind acts to them in their seasons of plague and famine will never be forgotten, and today in thousands upon thousands of homes, from Vladivostook, in the Pacific, to the fortresses of the Caucasus, millions of people are praying from the bottom of their carts for the repose of the soul of their Little Father," who was to them as great a soul as he was in stature.

And there will be sincere mourning, too, in the royal and imperial families of Europe. Not the conventional mourning prescribed by rule, but the mourning of little children. For who has not heard of the annual visits of the czar to Copenhagen, the home of his beloved czarina, when, with the children of emperors, kings and princes around him he was the biggest child of them all, joining in all their sports and romping with them like a big boy.

His death will be a most bitter loss to the wife he loved so well that it was a proverb in St. Petersburg that he was "the only Russian who was true to his wife." His home life was an ideal one, and all his leasure was found with his own family.

But as the czar and not the man he could be as stern and unrelenting as fate itself. He has banished men and women to Siberia, but they were men and women who sought to kill him or to overturn the government of which he was the absolute head, and which he, by the most solemn oaths in the mother city of Russia—Moscow—had sworn to maintain in its integrity.

Since Tuesday, when the doctors informed the czar that there was no longer room for hope, his majesty calmly waited for the end, attending to necessary state and family affairs in the short intervals of consciousness and freedom from pain. These were necessarily brief, the doctors having had recourse to sedatives to procure sleep and allay pain. On Wednesday the czar was still able to be taken to a window of the palace, whence he gazed out upon the country he loved so well as to earn for himself the appellation of the "peasant czar." The night passed with an aggravation of all the symptoms and a continuous distressing cough. The doctors and the czarina remained in attendance upon him throughout the night, only snatching brief intervals for sleep in the ante-rooms.

The morning broke with rain and wind and heavy clouds and the weather much colder. As the day advanced the weakness increased so rapidly that the czar himself, unconscious, recognized that he could live only a few hours. He expressed a desire to receive the sacrament, which was administered to him by Court Chaplain Vanisheff and Father Ivan, in the presence of the whole family.

The czar then conversed long and earnestly with Father Ivan, concluding by asking his family to gather round him. He spoke to each member separately and at the greatest length with the czarina. He blessed all his children present. The scene was one of deep pathos, all being in tears. All this time his majesty was sitting up in an arm chair. After taking leave of his family he gradually grew weaker, and his voice became so indistinct that it was scarcely audible.

About noon a convulsive fit of coughing was followed by a slight rally. Thence until the end the czar remained quiet, seemingly free from pain. At 2:15 o'clock he heaved a deep sigh and breathed his last in the arms of the empress, who then broke down with the weight of her grief. The doctors fear the results of reaction upon her already exhausted system.

When all was over the czarowitz, Grand Duchess Xenia and the other imperial relatives approached the bedside in turn to take a last farewell. The court officials and members of his majesty's suite were afterwards admitted.

Shortly after 4 o'clock the members of the palace guard were marshalled in front of the palace chapel for the ceremony of swearing allegiance to the new czar. They were the first to take the oath. The grand dukes were the next to swear allegiance and they were followed in the order of precedence by the high court functionaries, court officials, military officers and civil officials.

The arrangements that will be made for the funeral are still unknown. It is believed that the remains will be embarked on the imperial yacht Polarnaia (Polar Star) at Yalta, where the Seventh army corps will render military honors. The whole Black sea fleet will escort the yacht to Odessa, whence the body will be conveyed by rail to St. Petersburg, stopping at the important towns en route to enable the troops to render honors to the dead. The funeral will probably be held two weeks hence.

The arrival of the Prince and Princess of Wales, now en route to Livadia, is anxiously awaited. A special train awaits them at the frontier. It is believed that the presence of the Princess of Wales will afford great comfort to her sister, the czarina, and it is expected that she will make a long stay in Russia.

An imperial decree announcing the accession to the throne of Grand Duke Nicholas (the czarowitz) is expected to arrive from Livadia in a few days.

It is reported here that the populace of Moscow, indignant at what they believe to have been the malpractice of Dr. Zacharin in the case of the czar, are wrecking the doctor's house in that city.

THE NEWS IN WASHINGTON.

A Memorial Service to be Held at the Russian Legation.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—The announcement of the czar's death brought profound grief to the legation at Washington. Aside from the veneration which Russians have for the emperor, it was a personal sorrow to Prince Cantacuzene, who had before coming to this country been brought into close personal relations with the czar and had enjoyed an association with the imperial family. It was on leaving Russia for the United States that Prince Cantacuzene saw the emperor for the last time, bidding him and the czarowitz good-by and bearing from them words of kindness and admiration for the United States. At that time the czar was in robust health, and his giant physique gave indication that it was proof against disease.

Prince Cantacuzene was loathe to talk publicly at such a time of his country's bereavement. He said history in time would pay its just tribute to the merits of Alexander III. He had given Russia what she most needed, peace and quiet. For ten years there had been nothing heard of nihilism except in the inspired attacks of malicious persons. The previous emperor had been guarded by police, and yet he met assassination, while the late emperor moved openly among his people until he died amid their universal grief.

Under these circumstances the minister regretted the public appearance of a violent anarchistic proclamation emanating from Switzerland, thus coupling, he said, irresponsible denunciation of the emperor with the expressions of grief at his death. In Russia, said the minister, an affliction by America arouses the broadest expressions of sympathy from the press and people, and any contrary sentiment at such a time would not be tolerated.

Upon the receipt of the official notification of the czar's death, Mr. Adee, the second assistant treasurer, acting secretary during the illness of Secretary Gresham, called upon Prince Cantacuzene and conveyed to him verbally the condolence of the president and the secretary of state. A formal letter of condolence from Secretary Gresham will later be sent to him. The members of the diplomatic corps all called and left their cards at the Russian legation yesterday. The only visitor received there last evening was Assistant Secretary Adee.

Prince Cantacuzene has telegraphed to Bishop Nicholas, of the Greek church of Alaska, to inquire whether he can come to Washington and hold a memorial service for the czar. It is proposed to hold the memorial service at the Russian legation, as there is no Greek church in Washington.

A Baby's Life Saved.

WALTON, N. Y., April 14, 1894.—When my baby was six months old she was taken very badly with diarrhœa. A doctor came every day for a week. Baby got worse, until she could notice nothing at all. I got so worried I called on our druggists and he recommended Dr. Hand's Diarrhœa Mixture. I got it and just one-half a bottle cured my baby and saved her life.

THE LIFE OF RUSSIA'S RULER.

A Monarch Who Was Noted for His Domestic Purity.

The dead monarch was the second son of Czar Alexander II. He was born March 10, 1845. His mother was the Princess Maria, daughter of the late Grand Duke of Hesse-Darmstadt. Being the second son, Alexander originally had little prospect of ascending the throne. His education, therefore, was somewhat neglected, and his life down to his 20th year was uneventful, but when Nicolas, the oldest son, died April 24, 1865, at the age of 22, everything was changed with Alexander.

Nicolas was engaged to be married to the Princess Dagmar, daughter of the king of Denmark and sister of the Princess Alexandra, who married Albert Edward of England, Victoria's eldest son. Nicolas was a man of kindly disposition, and for a member of the imperial Romanoffs of Russia possessed of much culture. Alexander seems to have been a young man of unusually morose and obstinate disposition. He was in love with the Princess Metchereki, who was one of his mother's maids of honor. She was a beautiful girl, and Alexander had told her of his passion. Alexander II was not pleased with this and sent his son away. During his absence his sweetheart was forced to accept an offer of marriage from Paul Demidoff, prince of San Donato, and so, when the elder brother died and it was decided that for reasons of state Alexander should marry the Princess Dagmar, he made no determined opposition.

The marriage took place Nov. 9, 1866, and although authorities conflict about almost everything else pertaining to the life of Alexander III there is no doubt that the married life of the couple was almost an ideal one, notwithstanding the unusual circumstances which led to their union. Czar Alexander II was killed by a nihilist bomb March 13, 1881, and his son succeeded him immediately as Czar Alexander III. During the years that he had been heir apparent he seems to have neglected no opportunity to fit himself for the exalted and arduous duties that were before him.

Whether his design was to so rule Russia as to make its people happy and prosperous or simply to strengthen the Russian throne is a question upon which there are vital and radical differences of opinion. Certain it is that he changed the policy of his father, who had freed the serfs and had in many ways indicated a desire to prepare his country for a more liberal administration of the government, one that should in some degree conform to modern ideas.

The administration of Alexander III tended altogether toward a stricter drawing of the lines and more severe repression in every direction. The secret police of Russia—always the most perfect system of espionage in the world—became under Alexander III more Argus eyed than ever before. The cause of popular education, which had received some encouragement under the father, was crushed by the rule of the son; the press, which, though restricted, had a faint semblance of freedom under the old, was fettered absolutely under the new regime; Siberia, bad enough always, became the horror of the century; the Jews, whose lot was never a pleasant one in Russia, became the subjects of the most malevolent persecution.

Alexander III was a man of remarkable physical force. He stood 6 feet 4 inches in his stockings, and it is told of him that he could take a silver coin of the size of a dollar and double it between his thumb and forefinger. When in 1888 his train was wrecked and a number of persons were killed, it is said he saved those who were in the same compartment with him from injury and perhaps death by supporting a portion of the fallen roof with his shoulders till assistance came. He kept himself in good condition by the most severe manual labor. Like Gladstone, he was fond of chopping down trees, and in the winter time he used to shovel snow paths in his palace grounds.

During the last war between Russia and Turkey he showed that he had plenty of personal courage as well as physical strength, and although during his entire reign he was in constant expectation of being murdered he never hesitated to show himself to his people when he thought the occasion demanded it, and he oftentimes was accounted even rash in his manner of doing this.

It is true that he was usually if not always accompanied by a guard of mounted Cossacks; but, as has been repeatedly shown in the history of Russia, the nihilist does not fear death when he deems it his duty to kill a czar, and though the presence of the Cossacks insured the immediate destruction of any one who should throw a bomb in the path of the emperor they could not insure imperial immunity from such a missile.

It is a fact that whenever Alexander III appeared in public he was greeted with the most extravagant demonstrations of loyalty on the part of the people.

All authorities agree that Alexander III was a very hard worker. He rose at 7 in the morning, and after a quiet stroll through the grounds of the palace partook of an early breakfast, which was followed immediately by severe manual toil. As soon as this task was finished he plunged into the official business of the day with energy and dogged persistence. His work consisted principally of the examination of edicts, ukases, laws and all sorts of reports on all sorts of subjects, on the margins of which he would write decisions or impressions with a frankness and an abandon that were refreshing.

Whatever he wrote upon the margins of the documents submitted to him was preserved by glazing it over and carefully filing it in the imperial archives. His phraseology was not always very correct nor the sentiments very refined. "They are a set of hogs," was a favorite comment. "What a beast he is!" (ekaya skotina) was another. "Discouraging" (neyasno) followed. This is favorite word for the report of a failure of crops or a famine.

The czar used to finish his official duties, if possible, before luncheon, which was eaten at 1 o'clock and consisted of four courses. After luncheon he used to take recreation in the park. The newspapers came in for his attention at that time of the day, and then he gave audience to those ministers whose reports were due, although he rarely examined the papers submitted and never passed upon them until the following day. In the winter time, when in town, he used frequently to give up the evening to the theater, of which he was fond, or the opera, to which he was still more devoted. The Gatshina palace was his favorite residence, though for what reason it is difficult to understand, for it is a dull, dreary, dingy place, and as if to enhance its natural drawbacks Alexander III lived in the worst suit of apartments in the palace. Of the famous winter palace he had a superstitious horror, and even in the Anitshkoff palace he seemed to feel out of his element.

Five children were born to the czar and czarina. Nicolas Alexandrowitch, born at St. Petersburg May 18, 1868; George Alexandrowitch, born May 9, 1871; Xenia Alexandrowna, born April 6, 1875; Michael Alexandrowitch, born Dec. 5, 1878, and Olga Alexandrowna, born June 13, 1882. Of his children, the czar, as a model family man, was very fond, and many stories are told of the methods he used to adopt to give them pleasure. The czar is said to have been quite Dickens' equal in amateur theatricals in everything but literary ability. The czar's amusements with his children were not confined to play acting. He was fond of putting on old clothes and romping in the woods, and he used to delight in throwing sticks to be chased by dogs, in running races with young men and various other forms of athletic sports.

It is claimed by those who ought to know that Alexander III was almost the only European sovereign of his time who did not keep a mistress.

The czarina was the reverse of her husband in appearance. She was of attractive presence, of the northern type, tall and slender, with blue eyes and blonde hair. She, more than any other member of the imperial family, was in constant fear of the czar's assassination. She was passionately fond of dancing, and at the balls given every year in the winter palace indulged her penchant to the fullest extent.

The czar was essentially a religious man, and he believed implicitly that he ruled by "divine right." He was the head of the Russian church as well as civil and military head of the empire. He went to mass frequently, crossed himself often and prayed much. He gave a great deal to the church, and many have held that he was subject altogether too much to its influence. According to these people, the Russian church has been like a millstone around the nation's neck.

A VICTIM OF HAZERS.

Student in a Maryland College May Die from His Injuries.

HYATTSVILLE, Md., Nov. 2.—Hazing by students at the Maryland Agricultural college is liable to result in the death of one of their number, Edwin Gott, Jr., son of the secretary of state. Several nights ago a mock court was held, and Young Gott was convicted of a heinous crime. A rope was secured, fastened under his arm and he was suspended to a transom. Young Gott appeared at breakfast next morning as though nothing had happened, but later in the day was taken very sick. He has had several spasms and continues to grow weaker. He has been too ill to be removed to his home at Annapolis, and his condition is extremely dangerous.

Little Booty for Train Robbers.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 2.—Passenger train No. 3 of the Kansas City, Memphis and Birmingham railroad was held up at 1 o'clock in the morning a few miles east of New Albany, Miss., by three masked men and the express car looted. There was but $95 in cash in the express car, and that was undiscovered. All they secured was a package of cheap jewelry worth only $5. The bandits were traced to the suburbs of the town, and there all trace of them was lost. Their capture, however, is confidently predicted.

THE WRECKED WAIRAPA

Stories of the Disaster Told by Survivors.

STRUCK ON A ROCKBOUND COAST.

A Brave Steward Swam to the Shore with a Life Line, and by the Aid of This Line Over a Hundred Were Rescued—Thrilling Experiences.

AUCKLAND, N. Z., Nov. 2.—The survivors of the wreck of the steamer Wairapa tell thrilling stories of the wreck. Second Officer Clark says that a thick fog set in at noon Sunday, obscuring everything. The shock of the stranding awakened the passengers, and many of them rushed from their cabins in only their night clothing, making their way as quickly as possible to the deck. The sea was then making a clean breach over the after part of the steamer, and as the afrighted passengers came on deck many of them were carried overboard before they had a chance to catch hold of anything to save themselves.

When daylight came it was found that the steamer had struck at the foot of a precipitous cliff that loomed several hundred feet above the vessel. To effect a landing on the shelving places of the cliff was a most difficult and dangerous undertaking.

Those aboard the steamer could see floating in the sea around the wreck a large number of corpses. Some persons by means of floating wreckage managed to reach the edge of the rocks. The main and fore rigging were then filled with passengers, who had gone aloft to escape being swept into the sea by the huge waves that were combing over the vessel. About sixty of them were standing on the ratlines or cross trees. Others were hanging with most tenacious grip to the davits.

The outlook was very dark when an engineer and fireman volunteered to swim ashore with a line. They took the rope and jumped overboard, but had not gone far when the pounding seas compelled them to relinquish the line. They then swam for the rocks, which they reached in a terribly bruised condition. A Scotchman then volunteered to make the attempt to get the line ashore, but he, too, failed. Then one of the stewards said that he would try to get the line ashore. Divesting himself of nearly all his clothing, he boldly sprang into the foaming sea and grasped the rope. Time and again it appeared as though he had gone down, but he finally reached the rocks with the line still in his grasp. Aided by those on the rocks, the line was made fast, and it was by this means that most of the survivors were saved.

A young girl, Jane Williams, says that she was in her cabin when the steamer struck. She heard the thud and roused her sister, who was sleeping soundly. Each of the girls seized a life belt and rushed, in their night dresses, to the hurricane deck. The vessel suddenly listed, and the passengers on the lower side were swept from the deck. Miss Williams said:

"I and my sister climbed up the steep incline of the deck to the railing, to which we clung with all our strength. We were repeatedly submerged by the waves and were nearly drowned. The vessel pounded dreadfully, and I thought that every moment she was going to break up. I had in the meantime caught hold of a rope, which when a large wave struck me, snapped and I was thrown into the sea. I was unable to swim, and caught hold of pieces of wreckage. I was buffeted by the sea until I was driven, with others, clinging to the wreckage, close to the cliff.

"When day began to break the spectacle was appalling. I was hanging to a spar, around which my hair was twisted. Nearby I saw men and women torn from the wreckage to which they were clinging and drowned before my eyes. Some reached a ledge only to be again drawn back into the sea by a receding wave. Finally I was the only one alive. My sister, while attempting to escape by the life line, became entangled in the line and was strangled. After I had been in the water twelve hours and was almost completely exhausted, I was perceived by the survivors ashore. One of them swam to my rescue. He fastened a rope to me and then we were both hauled ashore."

Another passenger describing the scene on deck after the vessel had struck says that a number of persons were singing and praying. Several of them were kneeling and had hold of nothing, and therefore when the first big wave swept over the steamer they were carried into the sea.

Reports previously cabled to the Associated Press that 111 passengers and twenty three of the crew were drowned are confirmed. Over a hundred were rescued.

A Brief Thanksgiving Proclamation.

SALEM, Ore., Nov. 2.—Governor Pennoyer issues the following Thanksgiving proclamation: "I hereby appoint the last Thursday of this month a Thanksgiving holiday. In the day of property be joyful, but in the day of adversity consider.—Ecclesiastes vii, 14."

Rebecca Wilkinson, of Brownsvalley, Ind., says: "I have been in a distressed condition for three years from nervousness, weakness of the stomach, dyspepsia and indigestion until my health was gone. I had been doctoring constantly with no relief. I bought one bottle of South American Nervine, which did me more good than any $50 worth of doctoring I ever did in my life. I would advise every weakly person to use this valuable and lovely medicine; a few bottles of it have cured me completely. I consider it the grandest medicine in the world." Warranted the most wonderful stomach and nerve cure ever known. Sold by J. E. Mills, Middletown, N. Y.

DENOUNCED IN COURT.

Serious Charge Against a High New York Official.

SAID TO HAVE ACCEPTED A BRIBE.

A Former Inspector of the Excise Department Declares on Oath That Commissioner Andrews Accepted $500 for Procuring a License—He Denies the Charge.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Yesterday's sensation in connection with the Lexow investigation was the appearance of Mrs. Hermann on the stand. This was not sensational on account of testimony, for the witness was excused immediately after saying she appeared of her own free will, but because of the intrigue indulged in by the representatives of the committee to secure Mrs. Hermann's presence.

As soon as Justice Potts withdrew his charges of perjury against Mrs. Hermann in Jersey City she was discharged, and representatives of the Lexow committee asked her if she desired to go to New York and testify voluntarily. She replied that she did, and was taken to the ferry in a carriage. There an officer appeared and joined the party, armed with a warrant charging Mrs. Hermann with criminal contempt of court, which was to be served in case she changed her mind. Senator Daly, the witness' counsel, knew nothing of her departure from the jail, and said an hour before she left that she would never appear before the committee.

Early in the day Commissioner Sheehan was excused with the understanding that he should appear before the committee when summoned, but that he would not be called upon this week.

Detective Dennet was called to the stand after recess. He testified that he had tried during the day to subpœna the notorious Mme. Charles, but was told she was absent from the city.

The clerk of the Hotel Tortori, on the corner of Lexington avenue and Thirtieth street, was called. He admitted that Mme. Charles owned the hotel, although the license was in another name.

Moses Huntoon, superintendent of the National Ice company, said that when Policeman Carey was about to be appointed the prospective patrolman had borrowed $300 from him. He had given a check for the money. Policeman Carey told a disconnected story of having borrowed the $300 to give his father, a farmer in New Hampshire.

Edgar H. Tomlinson, former chief inspector of the excise department, testified that a friend of his asked him to secure by his influence a license for Mme. Charles. The witness said he used his influence to obtain a license and admitted that he told the woman she would have to take a license out in a different name. He said Mme. Charles called and saw his wife.

Mrs. Tomlinson was called and told a straightforward story of Mme. Charles seeking her husband's influence through her. Mme. Charles on her third visit gave Mrs. Tomlinson $500 to secure a license. The witness said she gave this money to her husband, and they went to the excise board. Her husband went into the commissioners' room.

"I stood outside," said she, "but through the door I saw Commissioner Andrews. When my husband came out the $500 was gone, and he said the license would be granted."

Mr. Tomlinson again took the stand and caused a sensation by saying he went into Commissioner Andrews' room and gave him $500.

"Are you positive that you paid Mr. Andrews, who is now street cleaning commissioner and sits there, $500?"

"Yes, positive. I have known him for thirty years."

Commissioner Andrews was sitting a few feet from the witness and right below the dias. When accused he turned pale.

"That $500 was a bribe?" asked Senator O'Connor.

The witness nodded his head.

"Did you receive any of the $500?" asked Senator Bradley.

"No, sir," replied the witness, positively.

"Do you entertain any hard feelings toward Commissioner Andrews?" asked Senator O'Connor.

"Yes, I have a good reason to do so," said the old man, with a touch of bitterness in his voice.

"Still, your feelings would not lead you to swear falsely?" queried Senator Pound.

The witness shook his head and turned his face to Mr. Goff, who asked:

"That $500 had nothing to do with the regular license fee?"

"No, sir."

"Your feelings prompted you to come forward?" asked Senator O'Connor.

"Yes!"

Then the witness straightened up in the chair and looked squarely at Mr. Goff and said:

"I have told the truth. I am now in the employ of the Western Union Telegraph company for thirty years on and off. I am an old war telegrapher."

Commissioner Andrews had been shifting nervously on his seat during the witness' accusations. He at last arose and said: "In common decency I demand an opportunity to be heard and deny under oath taking that $500."

Mr. Goff said the commissioner could take the stand today, and the investigation was then adjourned.

A PLAIN STATEMENT.

THE EQUAL RIGHTS AND LIBERTIES OF ALL CITIZENS

ASSAILED BY THE A. P. A.

The Refusal of the Republican State Committee to Take Any Action in the Premises—They Uphold the Un-American Doctrines.

A condition of things has arisen within the last two years in the United States which as a social phenomenon is worthy of serious consideration. A secret, oath-bound organization has come into being and spread over several States of the Union, having for its sworn and avowed purpose the deprivation of over ten millions of the people of the United States of certain rights which the constitution of the United States guarantees to all. Its sworn purpose is:

First—To bann all Catholics from public office upon the ground that, being Catholics they cannot be loyal citizens of the United States.

Second—To prevent Catholics from earning their living on the ground that they will thereby prevent Protestants from getting employment.

This organization goes beyond the sworn purposes of its existence by demanding that no person whose father or mother, or sister or brother, or wife, or sons or daughters, are Catholics shall be permitted to be candidates for public office, on the ground that these associations will prevent these candidates from being trustworthy public servants.

Whilst it is surprising that an organization with such aims should exist at all, it is vastly more surprising that in several States of the Union this secret conspiracy against the constitution should have fully attained its sworn purpose, and that at this writing over a million of the citizens of the United States, through no fault of their own, not because their history from the foundation of this government has not been honorable, not because they have failed in any duty to the State, but simply because of their religious belief, are put under the bann deprived of their civil rights and embarrassed in their efforts to earn an honest living.

It would seem that this well-known condition of things should excite the indignation of all broad-minded and patriotic men, and that, irrespective of party lines, they should rally to the relief of those oppressed citizens, and guarantee to them the liberties for which they have shed their blood on every battle field, from Bunker Hill to Appomattox.

A number of Catholic Republicans, of whom the writer was one, others being John T. McDonough, of Albany, N.Y., Patrick Egan, ex-Minister to Chili, Gen. Kerwin and Gen. O'Beirne, of New York, Richard Kerens, of St. Louis, a member of the Republican National Committee, went to the Republican State Convention at Saratoga, and urged the leaders of the convention, partly because it was a patriotic thing to do, but still more because we wished for the success of the Republican cause, to condemn this anti-American movement. We urged that the rights of 75,000 Republican voters were imperilled, and that every consideration of justice and policy demanded the action for which we pleaded.

The representations of the Catholic Republicans were given a full and courteous hearing. A resolution was prepared by Gen. Tracy, of Brooklyn. It read as follows:

"The Republicans of New York stand firmly on the principles of our national constitution, that all citizens of the United States maintaining legal allegience to their government, shall enjoy perfect political equality; and they will consent to no discrimination of rights based on differences of religious faith."

We were told by the Republican leaders that it would be adopted, but it failed of adoption in the committee of resolutions, presided over by Sereno E. Payne, of Auburn, N. Y., by a vote of 30 to 1, as we were informed by a member of the committee.

The Catholics of this State are in no way responsible for the raising of this issue. The men who urged other action are well known in the councils of the Republican party for their staunch adherence to its principles. They are known as men who fought its battles and sacrificed personal considerations in many a campaign in working for its welfare. The men who are responsible are those whose influences prevailed at the Republican State Convention. They never fought for the success of the Republican party or its candidates, in this State, but in this city and elsewhere worked for its defeat.

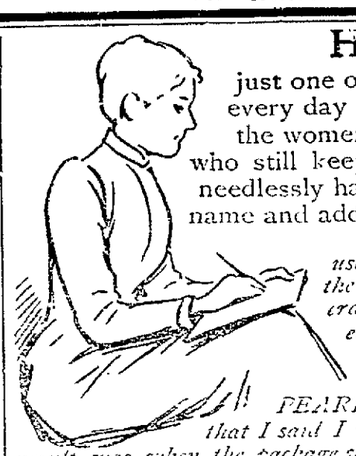
This act of the Republican State convention, represented by its committee, is a blot on the history of Republicanism. It is the proud recollection of every member of that party that it went to defeat with banners flying and proudly because of the rights denied on account of color. It appealed successfully again for these rights to the American people. The right to religious choice and the free practice of religion should be of graver moment than any right denied on account of color. The standard bearer of the Republican party, Mr. Morton, asserts this principle. It would have been worthy and characteristic of the man to have gone further and denounced the vile conspiracy. But he has distinctly failed to embrace the opportunity.

It will be difficult to persuade intelligent Catholics that the assertion of their rights as citizens should be held in abeyance until the success of any political party is assured.

We can look forward with confidence to a speedy settlement of this question. It is the history of the United States and of each particular State that the sober second thought of the people will right the wrong which a vast number of the people are now suffering. It is a matter of history that any party that openly or tacitly gives aid and comfort to the sworn enemies of religious freedom is destined to sure and speedy defeat.

If the leaders of the Republican party, or the Republican press, have any fault to find with the condition of things let them place the responsibility on the deliberate action of their leaders and the organization represented by over one hundred delegates in the convention, that brought it about.

T. A. KENDRICK.



Here is a Letter,

just one out of hundreds that are coming in every day. We publish it for the benefit of the women who read about Pearline, but who still keep on washing without it, in that needlessly hard and wearing way. We omit name and address, as requested:

"Now I will tell you how I came to use your PEARLINE. We have taken the 'Ladies' Home Journal' for several years. Three and a half years ago, every time I picked up my 'Journal' to read, the first thing I would see was your advertisement and picture of PEARLINE. I got so tired of looking at it, that I said I would get a package and try it. The result was, when the package was gone I bought another package, and so I have done ever since. I never think of going to wash clothes since, without my PEARLINE. I have recommended it to quite a number of people, who are now using it, just from my recommendation. I have just written this to you to let you know how highly I prize it. I don't want my name to appear to go before the public." 424

DEMOCRATIC PLANK.

We declare as contrary to the spirit of our institutions any display of religious intolerance in political discussions. We deplore any attempt to prescribe candidates for office on the grounds of religious belief by secret organizations or otherwise. The Democratic party, which always stood for political and religious freedom, does not hesitate to condemn all efforts to create a distinction among citizens because of differences in faith as unworthy of an enlightened age and abhorrent to the instincts of an American freeman.

REPUBLICAN PLANK

SIX.

WHAT DAVID B. HILL SAYS.

The Democratic party in this State stands, as it has ever stood, for that religious liberty, which is guaranteed to all by our Constitution, and I certainly take Republican party for its love of sympathy with and encouragement of that proscriptive spirit which attempts to set up a religious test as qualification for official preferment in this land of freedom and which is propagated by a certain secret political organization which deserves execration at the hands of every fair-minded man, but which the Republican State Convention last week distinctly refused, though earnestly urged to condemn.

Our duty is plain, and I believe we shall perform it, and if, perchance, adherence to the right brings disaster, we shall bravely accept our fate and take our place in private station by the side of our proscribed fellow-citizens until reason, justice and true religious freedom shall again resume their sway, as surely they will.—September 20.

WHAT LEVI P. MORTON SAYS:

Under the Constitution of the United States, as well as the organic law of this State, all citizens are placed on a footing of absolute equality before the law. This provision in the supreme law I fully recognize, not only because it is obligatory as a statute, but because I am in favor of the fullest freedom in the worship of Almighty God.—October 10.

The foregoing is sufficient to show the infamous character of the A. P. A. and the attitude of the two parties and their candidates toward it. Every Democrat, and every other citizen who appreciates the value of political as well as religious freedom, will echo the declaration of the Democratic State Convention and the brave words of David Bennett Hill.

The Know-Nothing Revival.

The pitiful attempt of Mr. Morton to stem the tide of opinion which is setting in against his candidacy among thoughtful citizens who are opposed to a revival of Know-Nothingism, by issuing a statement in which he declares in favor of "the fullest freedom in the worship of Almighty God," suggests that it is well to republish the oath to which every member of the A. P. A. must subscribe, together with the utterances of David B. Hill and the Democratic and Republican State Conventions touching that infamous organization of political and religious bigots. The oath is as follows:

I do most solemly promise and swear that I will use my influence to promote the interest of all Protestants every where in the world; that I will not employ a Roman Catholic in any capacity if I can procure the services of a Protestant; that I will not aid in building or in maintaining, by any resource, any Roman Catholic church or institution of their sect or creed whatsoever, but will do all in my power to retard and break down the power of the Pope; that I will not enter into any controversy with a Roman Catholic upon the subject of this order, nor will I enter into any agreement with a Roman Catholic to strike or create a disturbance whereby the Roman Catholic employes may undermine and supplant the Protestants, and that in all grievances I will seek only Protestants and counsel with them, to the exclusion of all Roman Catholics, and will not make known to them any thing of any nature matured at such conference; that I will not countenance the nomination, in any caucus or convention, of a Roman Catholic for any office in the gift of the American people, and that I will not vote for, nor counsel others to vote for, any Roman Catholic; that I will endeavor at all times to place the political positions of this government in the hands of Protestants. I do also promise to assist at all times members of this order against Catholics, even to the taking up of arms if it need be. (Repeat.) To all of which I do most solemly promise and swear, so help me God. Amen.

The planks in the Democratic and Republican platforms in regard to the A. P. A. are as follows. We place them in parallel columns for the convenience of the readers:

Lincoln Versus the A. P. A.

"I am not a Knownothing; that is certain. How could I be? How can any one who abhors the oppression of negroes be in favor of degrading any classes of white people? Our progress in degeneracy appears to me to be pretty rapid. As a nation we began by declaring that 'all men are created equal.' We now practically read it, 'all men are created equal, except negroes.' When the Knownothings get control, it will read, 'all men are created equal, except negroes and foreigners and Catholics.' When it come to this, I shall prefer emigrating to some country where they make no pretence of loving liberty—to Russia, for instance, where despotism can be taken pure, and without the base alloy of hypocrisy."—Complete works of Abraham Lincoln, edited by John G. Nicolay and John Hay. Vol 1, page 218.

Washington Versus the A. P. A.

The following is taken from a letter written by the Father of his country, and in reply to an address to him from the Catholics of the United States, on the occasion of his elevation to the Presidency:

"I hope ever to see America among the foremost nations in examples of justice and liberality. And I presume that your fellow-citizens will not forget the patriotic part which you Catholics took in the accomplishment of their revolution and the establishment of their government, or the important assistance which they received from a nation in which the Catholic faith is professed."

Grant Versus the A. P. A.

All secret, oath-bound political parties are dangerous to any nation, no matter how pure or how patriotic the motives and principles which first bring them together. No political party can or ought to exist when one of its corner-stones is opposition to freedom of thought and to the right to worship God according to the dictates of one's own conscience, or according to the creed of any religious denomination whatever.

achieved by the Surgeons of that famed institution. Little heroic, or cutting surgery is found necessary. For instance,

TUMORS Ovarian, Fibroid (Uterine) and many others, are removed by Electrolysis and other conservative means and thereby the perils of cutting operations avoided.

PILE TUMORS, however large, Fistula and other diseases of the lower bowel, are permanently cured without pain or resort to the knife.

RUPTURE, or Breach (Hernia) is radically cured without the knife and without pain. Trusses can be thrown away!

STONE in the Bladder, no matter how large, is crushed, pulverized, washed out and safely removed without cutting.

STRICTURES of the Urinary Passage are also successfully treated without cutting in hundreds of cases.

A Liberal Donation—Didn't Know It Was Loaded—Dehorning Cattle—Personal and Other Notes.

Correspondence ARGUS and MERCURY.

—The proceeds of the donation recently given to Rev. M. Byles, of this place, amounted to seventy-eight dollars.

—A case of "didn't know it was loaded" came near causing the death of the valuable shepherd dog belonging to your correspondent, George S. Green. Ira M. Hawkins and Mr. Green had been hunting, Tuesday of last week, and on returning to Mr. Green's left their guns at the barn until the chores were done. Mr. Hawkins asked Mr. Green's hired man to bring his gun to the house, and when the man picked it up he, not knowing it was loaded, pointed at the dog, and pulled the trigger. The dog, which was only a few feet distant, received the charge between the fore legs, just below the heart, making a wound six inches long. Mr. Green staunched the flow of blood and sewed up the wound. He has hopes of saving the life of the dog, which is intrinsically valuable and which he values as a household pet.

—E. Bull, of Stony Ford, was in town, Friday last, and exercised his skill as a dehorner on the dairies of James McGinnis, Edward Miller and several farmers about Bullville. He also took the horns off the large thoroughbred bull of John D. Smith. Mr. Bull does quite a large business in this line in the town of Crawford.

—The recent copious rains have raised the wells and streams and an abundant supply of water for the winter is assured to all.

—John Mickles has put his steam thresher and cleaner into winter quarters. He had a very successful season.

—The roads are very muddy since the late rains, and traveling about the country is anything but a pleasure.

—James Porter has sold in the Middletown markets over 100 barrels of apples during the past season. He has received very fair prices.

—A number from this vicinity are planning to go to Sullivan county on a pickerel fishing trip, after election.

—It is talked that a number of social parties will make this season a lively one.

—Mrs. James J. Houston, of Crystal Run, was visiting relatives near Bullville, for several days last week.

—I received a pleasant call from Hon. Eugene S Ives and John C. R. Taylor, a few days since. They are both true representatives of Democracy and are worthy of every Democratic vote. Vote for Eugene S. Ives for member of Congress and John C R Taylor for County Judge, and you will make no mistake.

It would have required a dozen visits of a physician as on former occasions. BLESS PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Mr. and Mrs. Ruff Were Restored by It To Peferct Health.

"There is no doubt that the life of most women at the present day is a complex one," says the Ladies' Home Journal, "and in the large cities the demands upon time and strength are legion. No wonder so many fall by the way."

Even women of the privileged classes know what fatigue means, and the weariness resulting from overtaxed nerves, that is more intense and more depressing than anything known to tired muscles.

When frequent headaches and neuralgia give warning that the nerve tissues are not being fully repaired after hard work or anxiety, further mischief will be avoided by feeding the brain and nerves with the wonderful nutriment, Paine's celery compound.

Nature is a gentle mother and soothes while she strengthens.

Paine's celery compound builds up the body according to nature's plan.

The human machine must have fuel. This grand invigorator and strengthener is able to restore the delicate nerves to robust health by feeding them rapidly and abundantly with the peculiar elements they find it so difficult to extract for themselves from the ordinary hearty diet. A great nerve doctor, famous in two continents, says that any woman's nervous strength is at all depleted must either take time to rest at any cost, or replace the worn-out tissues with Paine's celery compound.

A woman should never be too tired to smile.

Paine's celery compound is, to-day, busy in its mission to homes everywhere in the land, making sunshine, hopeful faces, and ready smiles where there was sadness and the weary looks of despair.

Mrs. Jennie A. Ruff, whose portrait is given above, writing from her home in in Sebewa, Mich., says:

"My husband has had a stomach trouble for over a year, from which he suffered the tortures of a daily death. He could eat scarcely anything, and what he did eat soured on his stomach and caused him to bloat so that life was only a burden. He tried physicians to no avail, and as I was taking Paine's celery compound, he thought he would try it. In a short time he was surprised to find that he could eat anything with no bad effects; the bloating is all gone and he is in good condition.

"I had suffered for years with periodical spells of sick headache; pen cannot describe what I suffered at such times. For the past two years I noticed that my nervous system was getting all out of order; I had no appetite, and was getting to be a mere shadow of my former self. I was nervous, weak, could not rest nights, and felt gloomy and low spirited. Before I had taken one bottle of Paine's celery compound I began to feel like a new person, and now, after taking six bottles, I am enjoying perfect health. I have not had a spell of sick headache in over a year. My nerves are all right, my sleep is like that of a healthy child and I feel more like one than like a woman of thirty. I do all my own work and bless Paine's celery compound for what it has done for me and mine."

"We have used in our family twelve or fifteen bottles of Paine's celery compound. Doctors' bills are now unknown in our family."

A Crushed Finger—Attended the Hill Meeting in Newburgh—The Robbery of Mr. Comfort—Needs of Our Village

Correspondence ARGUS and MERCURY.

—John Judson, about sixteen years old, who works in the woolen mills, had the misfortune to have the little finger on his left hand crushed between two rollers in the mill, Wednesday morning.

—C. J. Kidd, Daniel Carvey, John H. Cox, John P. Sears, L. H. Taft, A. N. Wade, William McNeal, Jr., T. D. Millspaugh and Harry Hasbrouck attended the Democratic mass meeting at Newburgh, Wednesday, at which David B. Hill was the chief speaker. They report having had an excellent time and say they heard a most eloquent speech.

—Mr. Hiram Comfort, who was robbed, on Saturday night, says that he only had only a trifle over a dollar in money when held up. It was lucky for him that he had no more.

—As stated before in these columns our village needs street lamps. A good lamp on the corner of the street where Mr. Comfort was held up might have prevented the robbery. That our police force is inefficient is argued by some of our citizens. Many drunken men are seen on our streets and few arrests have been made.

—Hallowe'en passed off unusually quietly, here.

—Vote the straight Democratic ticket, next Tuesday.

Col. Alexander S. Bacon, who spoke at the Casino, Monday evening, and teetotally disgusted the Republicans who were present, played second fiddle to Chauncey Depew at Elmira, Wednesday evening, making a short talk after Mr. Depew had finished. Col. Bacon's speech was devoted entirely to abuse of Senator Hill, which the Senator's old friends and neighbors resented, and when Col. Bacon ended they showed their resentment by enthusiastic cheers for Hill.

There are crises in the lives of parties as well as of men. Such a crisis now confronts the Democratic party in this State. It is not a question of factionalism or any other ism. It is a question of maintaining the supremacy of the party, nay its very life. Are you, as a Democrat, going to vote this fall to insure the election of a Republican President, Senate and Congress in '96? You can do it by voting for Levi P. Morton or his running mate, Everett P. Wheeler.

The Warwick Advertiser says that it would have been the graceful thing for the Democratic convention to have endorsed the nomination of Judge Beattie and that this would have been done "but for the bull-headedness of one delegate,—a noisy, opinionated fellow from Port Jervis," who threatened to make a great row if anything of the kind was attempted. The Advertiser is way off. There was no talk of endorsing Judge Beattie's nomination, no Democrat thought of anything of the kind. To lift the judiciary above politics is all right, but in order to do so the candidate for judicial honors must be a man who can lift himself above politics, and if Judge Beattie had been that kind of a man he would have had no place on the Republican ticket. More than this, Judge Beattie had made it an utter impossibility for the Democratic convention to endorse his candidacy by committing himself to the increase of salary scheme. The Democratic party is pledged to economy in the administration of affairs and does not believe in paying fancy salaries, $3,000 for $1,500 worth of work. The Democrats of Orange county would have stultified themselves had they placed Judge Beattie's name on their ticket.

NOT HIS FIRST FIGHT.

From the Newburgh Register

Renewed assurance comes that Gabriel Tuthill is making a gallant fight for sheriff on the Democratic county ticket, and stands a good chance of winning. This is not the first fight that Mr. Tuthill has been in. He was one of the men to respond to the call of his country when Fort Sumter was fired on, and he has good staying qualities wherever he may be engaged. Old army comrades will doubtless rally around him now.

A REPUBLICAN ENDORSEMENT OF J. C. R. TAYLOR.

The letter printed below, which was sent to Mr. John C. R. Taylor, the Democratic candidate for County Judge, by Mr. Henry R. Corwin, of near this city, is only one of many similar letters received by Mr. Taylor from Republicans, who think that while the incomes of taxpayers are decreasing it is no time to endorse the policy of increasing salaries, by re-electing a judge who asked and tried to get $3,000 salary for $1,500 worth of work. Mr. Corwin writes as follows:

WILLOW BROOK FARM,
MIDDLETOWN, ORANGE COUNTY,
NEW YORK, Oct. 29, 1894.

JOHN C. R. TAYLOR, Esq.

MY DEAR SIR:—As a farmer and a taxpayer and in the interests of the farmers and taxpayers of Orange county, I write to say to you that I will give you my unqualified support in your candidacy for the office of County Judge.

I am a life-long Republican, but in these days of heavy taxes I must oppose Judge Beattie on the ground that he or his friends claim that an increase of salary should be paid him.

I shall and do ask my fellow farmers and taxpayers to oppose his candidacy, for I believe that the time has come when all our people, irrespective of party, should take a stand against increasing taxation and against the increase of the salaries of our county officials, who are already well paid.

We need not stop to enquire whether or not Judge Beattie would renew his attempts to increase his salary to $3,000. We must, by our votes, make the principle of attempting to increase salaries so unpopular that public officials will not attempt it hereafter.

I am assured that you, if elected, will not ask for an increase of your salary, and if you can use this letter in any such way as will further your candidacy, you have my full permission. Yours, etc.,
H. R. CORWIN.

MORE ABOUT
CHILDREN'S CLOTHING.

WE Wish to be distinctly understood in regard to our selling children's clothing without profit, that it is the very identical stock we formerly sold at a profit, that has been marked down in plain figures to the exact wholesale price. Under this new order of things you pay for one suit only what we pay for the same when we buy them from the manufacturer by the hundred. And when this stock is gone, which wont be long, we shall replace it by one equally as good, if not better. No inferior goods, because we sell without profit We are willing to wait for our profit until the child grows out of his knickerbockers and buys his own clothes, for we are sure he will trade where his parents have traded for him and that he will be satisfied that he will receive the same careful attention when he pays his own bills that he and his parents received, and he will not be mistaken.

Mighty interesting reading the recent report of a State Dairy and Food Commissioner! The mask of deception is torn from so many articles posing as pure!

For instance, one brand of Beef, Iron and Wine made by a manufacturer, who labels it with the local druggist's name if desired, was a concoction of Alcohol, water and Iron flavored, BUT CONTAINING NO BEEF. Some of that stuff has been offered to the dealers in this city. Who bought it? Beware of Beef, Iron and Wine sold for less than good materials would cost. All Beef, Iron and Wine sold by us, and bearing our label, is made in our Laboratory from fine Imported Sherry Wine, Citrate Iron and pure Extract Beef. IT CONTAINS NO SALCYLIC ACID! It is useful in debility and acceptable to a delicate stomach. Its formula is open to any reputable physician.

Another fraud was Cod Liver Oil adulterated with Cotton Seed Oil! What do you think of that for a sick person. Much of the stuff called "Emulsion" is nothing but Cod Liver Oil converted into Soft Soap by adding alkalies, made by some large manufacturer, who puts the retail druggist's name on it. Our Cod Liver Oil whether in Emulsion or as clear oil, is guaranteed finest Norwegian Cod Liver Oil—absolutely pure. It is worth your while to remember this. Our Emulsion Cod Liver Oil is made in our own Laboratory, so our claims for it are facts based on knowledge.

WAALKILLS' VISIT TO PASSAIC.

The Celebration and Parade a Very Grand Affair – Some of Passaic's Strong Points—Its Magnificent City Hall—The Banquet to Waalkills'.

The twenty-fifth anniversary and parade of the Passaic city fire department, in which Waalkills', Middletown's youngest engine company and its long list of invited guests took part, yesterday, was, considering the size of the town, something immense. It was immense in elaborateness, beauty and prodigality of decorations. It was immense for good fellowship and lavish hospitality and courtesies extended visiting companies and invited guests. It was immense as an advertisement of the city's miles upon miles of McAdamized roadways and spacious avenues, lined on either side with charming residences,—many of them models of architectural beauty. It was immense as a revelation of progressive public spirit, of civic pride and ambition to make the place shine before all men. But its greatest immensity was, after all, its line of march. Great Scott, what a tramp it was! But Waalkills aren't kicking, the thing was worth a good deal more than it cost in backache and legache.

Waalkill Engine Comdany had the right of line in the parade, in which six home companies, five visiting and three junior companies took part. Surprise Hook and Ladder Company, the organization of boys which accompanied Waalkills, was escorted by Passaic Junior Engine Company. Another company of boys accompanied Dundee Engine Company in the parade. Goodwill Hook and Ladder Company, of Warwick, who were the guests of Alert Hook and Ladder Company, No. 2, had the right of line in the second division.

AFTER THE PARADE

Several banquets came off after the parade. Each visiting company was feasted in separate quarters. Waalkills' hosts, Passaic Steamer Company, No. 1, dined and wined their guests at old Armory Hall, and in right royal style they did the thing, princes of good fellows that they are.

After the feasting was over, there was the customary cross fire of speeches. Of course with Chaplain Evans and Counselor Gadney to orate for them, Waalkills were well equipped in that line. How well the Chaplain acquitted himself on his feet, rounds of cheers and ripples of laughter attested. "Say," said a Passaicer "that Chaplain of yours is a dandy." The Counsellor, it is needless to say, kept his end up, for when did he fail, on such occasions, to bring down the house?

Foreman T. J. Morris and Assistant Foreman Grant Conkling, in vain disclaimed gift of oratory, but they had to get to their feet, and if cheers mean anything they did nobly. Vice-President Lipfeld was another reluctant speaker. He too is too modest by half. Passaic's foreman, John H. Remig, and Mr. W. E. Gibbs, ex-Chief of the Passaic department and an ex-Passaic, spoke for the home company. Foreman Remig is so modest and retiring that he is not to be coaxed into extended remarks; but while his forte is action rather than words, he is a better talker than he knows. As to Mr. Gibbs he is a born orator. Words flow from his lips until one sighs with envy of his gift.

An episode of the evening was the presentation of a silver candelabrum by Wallkills to Passaics. The gift was specially appropriate to the occasion, the twenty-fifth anniversary of the organization of Passaics. Brief appropriate remarks were made by President Macardell and Foreman Remig.

Another episode of the occasion was most unusual and impressive. This was the presentation of gold badges to three members of Passaics in recognition of their long periods of service and their meritorious records in the department. These gentlemen, Mr. Christopher Huber, Mr. Edward Monell and Mr. Otto Smith, all ex-Chief Engineers, are the oldest surviving active members of their company. A quarter of a century had elapsed since the birthday of the company, since the day upon which they affixed their names to its roll. Still ready to respond to every call of duty,—what other company can boast their equals?

Senator Hinchcliff, of Paterson, dropped in upon the banquet scene to greet Passaics and their guests, and he responded to a call for a speech. It would have done Middletowners proud to have heard the Senator's words of praise for their public spirit, their push and energy. He knew no other such town and people, he said, anywhere.

RANDOM NOTES OF THE DAY.

—A civic banquet came off at the Passaic County Hotel, at which Mayor Brown presided. The civic dignitaries and ex-dignitaries of our city, accompanying Waalkills, took it in.

—Passaic's Mayor, Hon. Walston H. Brown, is the kind of a man a "booming" town has use for. Evidently he is very popular in his community. He did the courtesies of the day and occasion most handsomely.

—All along the line of march there were clapping of hands and waving of handkerchiefs for Surprise Hook and Ladder Company, "Waalkill's Juniors," as the Passaic papers call them. The boys looked handsome, marched like veterans and were outdone in politeness by no company in the line. A pretty feature they made, as did a company of Passaic "tots," who escorted them.

—The one thing the people of Passaic are most proud of is their City Hall. Well may they be proud of it, for such another no town of double its size in all this land can boast of. It cost, including the spacious grounds it is surrounded by, $75,000, and it would be cheap at a quarter of a million.

—The writer and others who went from Middletown is under special obligations for polite attentions at the hands of Alderman Remig, whom everybody in Passaic appears to know, and whom everybody in Passaic appears to like.

THE TRIAL AT ST. PAUL'S.

Mrs. E. C. Royce on Trial Before a Church Court – Reporters Excluded, but Some Things that an "Argus" Reporter Learned.

"Reporters are not admitted here, this afternoon," was the salutation which struck an ARGUS reporter square in the face at St. Paul's Church, this afternoon.

Being unable to get in, the reporter leaned up against the fence and looked at the walls of the church, and in time he came to know that Rev. W. E Clarke, of Cornwall, is presiding at the trial of Mrs. E. C. Royce, which is in progress in the lecture room of the church.

By the rules of the church only members of the Methodist Church can appear as counsel at church trials. Mrs. Royce has secured as counsel two Methodist lawyers, D. W. Esmond, of Newburgh, and George McLaughlin, of Monticello. Another Methodist lawyer, W. J. Groo, appears for the prosecution.

The committee of nine, who will pass upon Mrs. Royce's case, is selected from churches in the Newburgh district.

There is a very large attendance of Methodists from all this section.

INCIDENTS AND HAPPENINGS IN GOSHEN.

The Traction Company Gets Its Charter—Humpty Dumpty—No Speakers at the Republican Meeting—Vote for Francis Flynn.

From Our Regular Correspondent.

—The Middletown-Goshen Traction Company, at last, has a franchise to enter Goshen. It was granted by the Trustees, last night. The route is through Spring street to near H. J. Miller's house, to Grand street and through that street to West street, opposite Smith Barnee's house.

—Music Hall was well filled, last evening, to see Bates Bros.'s Humpty-Dumpty. The audience was well pleased with the entertainment and enjoyed many hearty laughs. The skirt dancing appeared to please the "old boys," as they applauded the dancer heartily. Some excellent work on the horizontal bar and some good tumbling were the features of the performance.

—The Court House, last night, was packed with people to listen to Messrs. Parkinson and Adams discuss issues of the day from a Republican standpoint. The Goshen Band played sweet music at the door to attract a crowd. Both speakers were "out of sight," neither appearing and none of Goshen's faithful had pluck enough to address the crowd. Mr. H. C. Duryea announced that Mr. Parkinson, the principal speaker, had not shown up and that Mr. Adams was indisposed. Then the band played again and all filed out and went their several ways.

—The official ballots read, Francis Flynn, for Coroner, while by mistake, a number of pasters were sent out with the name of Frank Flynn, for Coroner, on them. If you use a paster, be sure it reads, Francis Flynn.

—Dr. Seward has formed a partnership with Dr. R. L. McGough, of New York. They have rented and will occupy the offices vacated by Dr. Hitchcock, who has given up his practice and will locate in the far West.

COURT OF APPEALS DECISION

Mrs. Addie V. Tuthill's Judgment Against the United Life Insurance Co. Affirmed.

The Court of Appeals has just handed down a decision in the case of Addie V. Tuthill, of Goshen, widow of the late John D. Tuthill, a prominent citizen of that town, against the United Life Insurance Company, of the city of New York. At the time of Mr. Tuthill's death, in September, 1891, he held a policy of insurance in the defendant's company, made payable to his wife, for $3,000. After his death the company claimed that when Mr. Tuthill made application for membership he made misstatements in reference to his health, which made the policy invalid. Mrs. Tuthill, through her attorneys, O'Neill & Royce, of this city, brought suit against the company to recover amount of policy and interest. The defendant, through its attorneys, Harry Wilber and Hon. S. W. Fullerton, defended and judgment was rendered in favor of Mrs. Tuthill, at a circuit court, held at Goshen, in June 1892.

The company then appealed to the General Term and from there to the Court of Appeals, where the appeal was argued, some three weeks ago, by Harry Wilber, Esq., of New York, for the company, and William F. O'Neill, Esq., of this city, for Mrs. Tuthill, and the decision just rendered by the court in Mrs. Tuthill's favor will give her not only the face of the policy, but will carry interest from September, 1891.

A VETERAN'S VERDICT.

The War is Over. A Well-known Soldier, Correspondent and Journalist Makes a Disclosure.

Indiana contributed her thousands of brave soldiers to the war, and no state bears a better record in that respect than it does. In literature it is rapidly acquiring an enviable place. In war and literature Solomon Yewell, well known as a writer as "Sol." has won an honorable position. During the late war he was a member of Co. M, 2d. N. Y. Cavalry and of the 13th Indiana Infantry Volunteers. Regarding an important circumstance he writes as follows:

"Several of us old veterans here are using Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, Heart Cure and Nerve and Liver Pills, all of them giving splendid satisfaction. In fact, we have never used remedies that compare with them. Of the Pills we must say they are the best combination of the qualities required in a preparation of their nature we have ever known. We have none but words of praise for them. They are the outgrowth of a new principle in medicine, and tone up the system wonderfully. We say to all, try these remedies."—Solomon Yewell, Marion, Ind., Dec. 5, 1892.

These remedies are sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent direct by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles $5, express prepaid. They positively contain neither opiates nor dangerous drugs.

RESPONSIBILITY.

No stream from its source
Flows seaward, how lonely soever its course,
But what some land is gladdened! No star ever rose
And set without influence somewhere! Who knows
What earth needs from earth's lowest creature? No life
Can be pure in its purpose and strong in its strife,
And all life not be purer and stronger thereby!
The spirits of just men made perfect on high—
The army of martyrs who stand by the throne
And gaze into the face that makes glorious their own—
Know this, surely, at last! Honest love, honest sorrow,
Honest work for the day, honest hope for the morrow—
Are these worth nothing more than the hand they make weary,
The heart they have saddened, the life they leave dreary?
Hush! the sevenfold heavens to the voice of the spirit
Echo, "He that o'ercometh shall all things inherit!"

A CURE FOR BORES.

"I am in trouble," said Bremner to his friend Sommers, "and I want you to help me out."

"Financial?" asked Sommers, with a slight contracting of his eyebrows.

"Oh, no. Worse than that a good deal."

"I didn't know anything could be worse in these panicky times. What is it?"

"I have a friend," said Bremner, "or a man who thinks himself my friend, and whom for certain reasons I wish to shake off, but he refuses to be shaken. Now, you are a resourceful man and may be able to give me a hint. I have tried everything with Snaggs—everything short of positive insult—and all to no purpose."

"What is the matter with him?" asked Sommers.

"The matter is this: He has a boy 7 years old or thereabouts, and he always persists in talking about the lad—in fact, he can't talk of anything else—and imagines every one as deeply interested as himself. I have nothing at all against the boy. He is a good enough, commonplace little fellow, like all the rest of them. I never see any difference in boys myself. They all seem equally objectionable. But Snaggs comes to our house, sits down and talks about his boy until I am nearly driven crazy. I hope you can suggest something for my relief."

"I suggest," said Sommers, "that you take Snaggs to the state of Michigan, U. S. A., and kill him."

"Why to Michigan?" queried Bremner.

"Oh, simply because they don't hang for murder there, and any penalty short of hanging should be cheerfully borne to get rid of a man like Snaggs."

"I didn't know you were acquainted with him," said Bremner excitedly.

"I'm not, but I'm afflicted in the same way myself."

"Nonsense!" cried Bremner. "I never even heard you mention your children."

"I mean that I am afflicted with a friend like Snaggs. It's a daughter in his case. His name is Gregsby. I'm even worse off than you are, for this only daughter is but 5 years old. You are two years ahead of me. By and by the boy will reach years of discretion, and he will get there quicker than Gregsby's girl."

"I don't know about that," Bremner replied gloomily. "Girls grow up so much faster than boys do."

"But they never reach years of discretion, you know."

"I don't believe any son of Snaggs' will either. The boy's father hasn't, at any rate. But I say, Sommers, an idea strikes me. Why not introduce Snaggs and Gregsby to each other?"

"That wouldn't be a bad plan," replied Sommers cheerfully, "and then we might bet on them. I'll back my man to be the greater bore."

"There wouldn't be any use in betting," said Bremner, "for if your man is as bad as mine it could only end in a draw."

"Bring your man round, and we'll test the case."

"Shall I bring Snaggs to your house tomorrow night then?" asked Bremner.

"Yes, and if you're in for a bet I'm your victim. I have great faith in Gregsby and would like to have a little stake on him."

"It's a serious subject with me," replied Bremner.

"Oh, very well, then, I'll expect you tomorrow night about 8 o'clock, though I suspect your man is not half so capable a bore as mine."

It was a few minutes before 8 o'clock when Gregsby pressed the electric button at the Sommers residence. Sommers heard him talking to Mrs. Sommers in the hall, saying: "Oh, yes, thank you, she is quite well. I'll tell you something funny that she said today to her mother."

Sommers groaned and helped himself to a quantity of the stimulant provided for his guests. The next moment Gregsby appeared, smiling, and Sommers greeted him with well feigned cordiality.

Very soon the bell rang again, and a few minutes after Bremner was introducing Snaggs to the two sitting in the smoking room.

"Beastly weather this," said Gregsby to the newcomers. "I don't mind the weather myself, but when a man has children he is compelled to think of it."

"Have you children?" asked Snaggs, with apparent interest. "I've a little boy myself, but he doesn't mind the weather in the least."

"I shouldn't say children," replied Gregsby. "I have one little girl, and she is only 5 years old, but wonderfully knowing for her age, and this weather is so bad that she misses her walk with her mamma. We never trust her without a nurse, you know"—

"I was saying," broke in Snaggs, "that I have a little boy myself. He is 7, and he goes out in all sorts of weather. I don't believe in coddling children. And that reminds me of a clever thing he said to me this morning. He always comes a little piece of the way with me when I start for the office. He"—

"Ah, yes," interrupted Gregsby, "but girls are delicate little creatures and have to be taken care of."

"Quite so," agreed Snaggs. "I admit that there are disadvantages about girls that boys are quite free from."

"Disadvantages!" cried Gregsby. "You don't mean to say that a great clumsy boy is to be compared with a neat little girl? I would rather have a girl any day, big or little, than a boy."

"Oh, every one to his taste," said Snaggs loftily. "By the way, Bremner, did I tell you what my boy said the other day when I took him to have his hair cut?"

"No," said Bremner enthusiastically. "Tell it to us, Snaggs."

"Girls," put in Gregsby, "don't have to have their hair cut. My little girl has the most beautiful of golden hair you ever saw. You've seen it, Sommers. Every one turns to look at her when she walks out with her mother."

"Hmmph!" said Snaggs, with ill concealed contempt. "I was saying that I took my boy to have his hair cut, and it was the first time that he had ever been to a barber's shop. A man was being shaved, and his face was all over lather. Without a word the boy drew his hands from mine and bolted for home, running so fast that I didn't overtake him until he was at the door. 'What did you do that for, you young rascal?' I said.

"'Oh, papa,' he answered, 'if my face is going to break out like that, I don't want to have my hair cut.' Funny, wasn't it? He thought the lather was the result of the hair cutting. He's awfully quick at reasoning, that boy."

"Well, it seems to me that he didn't reason to a very correct conclusion. Now, my little girl was having a dress fitted the other day, and she asked the dressmaker where the dress orchard was. She thought that dresses grew on trees."

"I must confess that I can't see much reason about that," said Snaggs spitefully, "if you are giving it as an instance of reasoning against what my boy said of the man at the barber's."

"Reasoning?" hotly replied Gregsby. "I never said anything about reasoning. It was poetical. She thought dresses grew on trees, and that ribbons were the blossoms. She told me so herself. And then another time she and her mother were conversing"—

"You'll have to excuse me," said Snaggs, rising. "I remember now that I have an appointment at the club. I forgot it, Bremner, when I promised to come here with you."

"Oh, don't go yet," said Bremner. "Tell us that story about what the boy said to the organ grinder."

"Ah, yes," said Snaggs eagerly, apparently forgetting his appointment in the joy of narration. "Mr. Sommers didn't hear that one, did he? Well, one day an organ grinder stopped in front of our house"—

"I don't wish to interrupt," put in Gregsby, also rising, "but I promised Mrs. Gregsby that I would be home almost directly. I merely came over, Sommers to tell you that I could not stay tonight."

"Oh, well," cried Sommers and Bremner simultaneously, rising and holding out their hands, "if you really must go, why, you must, I suppose."

"I am very glad to have made your acquaintance, Mr. Gregsby," said Bremner as he shook hands and wished him good night, and he added: "I wish you would come over some night and see me. My friend Mr. Snaggs here often pops in, and we will all get better acquainted."

"And you, Mr. Snaggs, drop in and see me," said Sommers. "You will be nearly always sure of meeting Gregsby here. Come in often and have a chat. I have a lot of boys myself, and I like to hear about them."

"That man Gregsby is a blanked idiot," said Snaggs to Bremner a few days after, "and I give you notice that if he comes to your house I won't."

And as Gregsby said almost the same thing to Sommers let us hope that the acid of one neutralizes the alkali of the other.—Idler.

Pens Don't Go.

"Drop that!"

The prominent attorney who had just picked up a pen in the recorder of deed's office to affix a few additional annotations to a document he was about to file looked up in astonishment at his friend Sam de Jong's warlike order.

"Drop that pen, I say!" continued De Jong, smiling. "Don't you know that's a criminal offense?"

The lawyer said he didn't, and the D. R. then explained to him that there was a statute which provides that no one but a sworn employee of the department shall use a pen in the office of recorder of deeds under penalty of prosecution.

"You folks can come in here and use a pencil all you like," he continued, "but as soon as you pick up a pen and commence to write you lay yourself liable to arrest. See?"

The lawyer looked up Missouri's laws and saw.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Mummy Wheat.

The belief in the vitality of mummy wheat is so persistent that it probably will not be overthrown by the result of careful tests on Lord Winchelsea's farm. Every visitor to Egypt is besought by the Arabs to buy wheat which is declared to be a veritable portion of the grain Joseph stored in Pharaoh's granaries, but which are really gathered in the nearest wheatfield. The Arabs have even been impudent enough to offer indian corn, which is of American origin, to credulous tourists as "from a mummy." A few months ago Lord Sheffield, on his return from Egypt, gave Lord Winchelsea a handful of wheat which he had himself taken from a sarcophagus containing a mummy. A hundred of these grains were carefully planted under a glass frame. After some weeks it was discovered that the seeds had rotted away.—Philadelphia Ledger.

"America's Greatest Men and Women."

AMERICA'S GREATEST MEN AND WOMEN.

MR. WILSON TALKS.

MY Name is Wilson; I do an insurance business on LaSalle street, in Chicago Ill., and I live in Evanston, Ill. Evanston is what was originally a scattering population on a pretty point on Lake Michigan, esteemed years ago far from the city of Chicago, but now one of the varied towns which may go within it by vote of the population.

I am married and have a wife and one child. That child is a boy (I suppose I should feel the same solicitude if it was a girl), and I have a father's natural fancies as to what must be the best thing to give that child the right kind of intelligence, and so divert his course that he may succeed in life. I have studied a great deal upon the subject. My own experience would not be of great value, because I have succeeded only to the limit of the average man and am barely established; still, I own the house and lot upon which I live, and am feeling perfectly safe in meeting the exigencies of the year. I want the boy to take a broader view than I did to be a bigger man in the world. I have studied how to teach him to do that, and he has done pretty well, as far as the preliminaries go. Now, I have thought over what I should say to him and have sometimes been puzzled. I could not very well tell him what to do. I wanted to tell him what I needed but what I did not learn myself when I was of his age, and what my father did not know how to tell me, or else was not thoughtful enough to do so. I wanted to tell him how to follow the example of those who have succeeded at the present time and under the circumstances which ordinarily affect a young man struggling in this Republic established on this comparatively new world to-day. I wanted to tell him just what he had better do to get along well, and to point out to him what had been done by the people who were successful at the present time.

Of course, the record of the people of any time past would not be of so much value, because circumstances must necessarily have been different when they were alive. I feel confident, though, that if I could learn, some way and somehow, what the people who are so successful to-day have done and how they did it, I could give to my boy such advice as would make his own life at least as far removed from failure as justified by the natural ability he may possess.

I looked around for some authority which I might consult in order to give him the facts most essential with this idea of mine in mind, but I could find no one until I discovered that a great publishing firm in Chicago had decided to bring out a book giving the photographs of all the people who are prominent in America to-day. Here was what I wanted. The book, as I have learned, is going to be published in 16 parts, 16 pages to each, with a recent photograph on each page of some active leading American man or woman of to-day, while underneath appears the story of that same person's life—the story telling what that person did, and how the ends attained were eventually accomplished. Here was what I wanted; here was what I needed in various ways; here was what I was certainly seeking in order to obtain the information with which to educate my boy and secure for him that knowledge which will give him a source of thought and make him prominent in the world.

I have the first sheets of this work. It is a graphic story of America's Greatest Men and Women, told in each instance on a single page underneath a photograph of recent date, which conveys to the eye an idea of what that person is. To me the photograph tells even more than the suggestive record beneath; and yet it is odd how in each instance the correct story corresponds with the expression upon the face which is reproduced in the portrait above. I do not know how the series will end. I know very little about this new feature of the newspaper people; I know nothing about the publishers and their expectations, but I do know this: that if the series so begun should be continued to its practical, ordinary good sense end—and I don't care whether that will include 200 or 700 of America's Greatest Men and Women, which is the title of the book—I do know this, that for the ordinary, active and alert business man—I will certainly say far more for the student or the literary man, or the politician or the statesman—for all these I will say it will be simply the most valuable and the most remarkable book produced in modern history. The wonder is that some one has not thought of it before. Yet no one seems to have done so since the days of Plutarch. Plutarch knew something. That shrewd old fellow knew that all who would get out of the drift, all who would accomplish great things, wanted to know every detail of the lives of those who had better luck or more courage or a broader brain than their fellows; but I am no authority on these points. I only know that there is produced a second Plutarch's Lives, that its biographies are shrewd, graphic and curt, and written without bias and without prejudice. I only know that there was a Plutarch—God bless the old fellow—and that there is this modern work.

This is the work I am going to give to my boy. I am going to make him read it thoroughly. The work is announced as consisting of 16 Parts, with 16 pages and 16 photographs in each part, and when bound, the whole series will make a great volume of 256 pages, the like of which has never been equaled. It is the story of the personal character of the men and women who are making the nation's history at this particular time. What a work this is! Do you imagine that I would miss it for my boy, or, incidentally, for myself?

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. is on every wrapper.

Burglar Captured by a Priest.

LEBANON, Pa., Nov. 2.—Rev. Father Adam Christ, rector of St. Mary's Catholic church, of this city, caught a burglar Wednesday night. He heard the noise of falling glass, and hastening from the rectory, saw a man perched on the roof of an arched entrance to the basement of the church. Father Christ leveled a revolver at him and ordered him down. The man descended and the clergyman handed him over to the police. He gave his name as George Burke.

Ex-Premier Mercier's Funeral.

MONTREAL, Nov. 2.—A president could not have a more impressive funeral than the late Honore Mercier, ex premier of Quebec, had today. Among the pallbearers were Chief Justice Taconte, ex-Premier Joly, L. O. David, President of the St. Jean Baptiste society, and numerous judges. The hearse was drawn by six horses, and it took four wagons to carry the floral emblems. There were twelve bands in the procession, in which at least 22,000 people took part. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Rives Junction she was taken down with pneumonia, succeeding la grippe. NO QUORUM PRESENT.

Some Matters That Would Have Been Brought Before the Council Had It Met, Last Night.

Last night was the regular meeting night of the Common Council. Four of the members were absent from the city, having accompanied Waalkill Engine Company to Passaic. Four members were present, President Dorrance, and Aldermen Mance, Baldwin and Funnell. They waited until 8:35 o'clock for Alderman Reed to put in an appearance, and then adjourned until Saturday evening.

There was considerable business to be transacted and several grievances were to be aired.

A delegation from the W. T. C. U., headed by Mrs. Zadie Luddington and Mrs. Frank Burr, appeared with a petition to the Council praying them to see that the Sunday liquor traffic is stopped.

Mr. Rorty was on hand to urge action in the Beacon street extension matter.

Mr. William Orr, of Orr Brothers, was present to talk paving matters over with the Council, and "Jakie," the frankfurter man, wanted the Council to grant him a license to conduct his "Owl" night lunch wagon.

There were several bills to pay and certificates of indebtedness to look after, but the lack of a quorum prohibited any action whatever, and an adjournment was taken as above stated.

SUGGESTIONS TO VOTERS.

How to Avoid Mistakes in Wrestling With Many Ballots—An Easy Way to Avoid the Possibility of Mistakes.

When the voter enters the polling place, on Tuesday next, the ballot clerk will hand him seventeen ballots. It would seem as though such a "fistful" of paper would necessarily bewilder a nervous or inexperienced voter, but no one should allow himself to be worried over the matter. There will be seven official ballots as follows: Democratic, Republican, Prohibition, People's Party, Socialist, Empire State and Democratic Reform. The regular Democratic ticket will be headed by the name of David B. Hill, for Governor, and will contain all the names of the Democratic nominees for State and county offices, and that of Eugene S. Ives for Congress. This is the ticket to vote. Pick that out first, fold it, and stick it in your hat, and the rest is plain sailing.

The Republican and Prohibition tickets are the only others upon which are printed the names of county officers, the four others having only the names of the three State officers to be voted for. Fold all these tickets in the proper way and place them to one side.

Then select all of the remaining tickets upon which the word "AGAINST" is printed. There will be five of them. Fold them and stick them in your hat with the ticket already there. Fold the remaining five tickets which will be labeled "For" and place them with the six others previously placed aside.

With the tickets thus folded and divided it will be a simple matter to hand to the inspector the tickets you desire to vote, and also those which you desire to discard.

If your friend cannot read provide him with a Democratic paster and tell him to select any one of the seven long tickets and stick the paster on it, fold it, put it in his hat and fold and return all the other tickets.

Then let him take the ticket out of his hat and vote it.

He will reach Port Jervis, this afternoon, and leave there for this city, to-morrow morning, at 11 a. m.

According to his schedule he should leave at once for Newburgh, where he is due at 8 o'clock, but the Union announces that he will return to Port Jervis from here by train and speak at the Republican meeting, to-morrow evening.

The men all sustained severe and probably fatal injuries. They were removed to St. Francis Hospital.

The Doctors Endorse It.

At a regular meeting of the Genesee County (N. Y.) Medical Society, physicians of the county passed a vote of thanks for samples of Gilmore's Aromatic Wine, which had been presented to the society, and said that they recognized the remedy as being adapted to a large class of summer diseases. Physicians everywhere recommend this excellent medicine, especially to their lady patients. Sold by all druggists for $1.00 per bottle.

O'Brien-Horan.

Correspondence ARGUS and MERCURY.

—The marriage of Mr. D. Clifford O'Brien and Miss Hanna Horan took place at St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church, Paterson, at 3 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon. The bridesmaid was Miss Maggie Horan, sister of the bride, and the best man was Mr. Weeks. The bride was handsomely dressed in white satin with pearl trimmings and carried a bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid was also robed in white satin and carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums. After the ceremony congratulations were showered on the young couple by their assembled friends. A rich wedding supper had been provided by Caterer Hill. The couple is well known in this vicinity, the bride having been at one time a resident of Middletown and the groom having lived near Goshen.

Narrow Escape—Autumnal Services—Fish—Choir Rehearsals.

Correspondence ARGUS and MERCURY.

—Joe Apple's horse, attached to a peddling wagon, became frightened in front of Theodore Latimer's store, in Unionville, Saturday afternoon, and started to run toward the railroad. As it neared the crossing a carriage containing Mrs. L. Decker and daughter, Rosa, and Lizzie Buckbee, stood in the road in front of Wilbur Van Fleet's feed store, and a collision seemed inevitable, but the runaway seeing something in the way, took the sidewalk by Hanford's wagon making shop and ran to the top of the hill, where the wagon caught in a tree and stopped the horse. No serious damage was done, but it frightened the ladies terribly.

—Quite a number of fish were taken from the fish pond on F. E. Myers's farm, Saturday.

—Some from this vicinity attended autumnal services at South Centreville, last Sunday evening.

—Choir rehearsal at Mount Salem, Saturday night. More singers are desired.

—Minnie Reamer, of Port Jervis, was in this vicinity calling on friends, Friday.

—Mrs. F. E. Myers has been suffering from an injured eye, but is convalescing.

—John Reamer is expecting some hunters from New York city.

Mrs. Putnam, Forristdale, Mass., says:

and dizzy, faint, gasping attacks left me as soon as I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am like one raised from the dead. I was sick with womb troubles so long I thought I never could get well."

WHY Do you spend your money with a man who carries it to New York? Why don't you help along a man who spends his money in your city? Why don't you take your German lessons from a German Doctor, who will teach you the best German you ever heard? I don't stop after having taught three months by going away to New York. But children teaching, my specialty, will not be successful, except it is steady. If you like to hear your children talking and writing German very soon, send them to my German school, beginning Nov. 3d, two times a week Saturday, 2 to 3; Wednesday, 5 to 6. You pay only $1 per month. Please apply at my residence, 54 Sprague avenue. School rooms in my house. 71d6t REV. H. KATZ, A. M. PH. D.
